Food web

A food web is a graphic depiction of the feeding connections between different species within an ecological community. This example illustrates the relationships within a marine ecosystem, in which killer whales are the apex predators and phytoplankton are the primary producers.