

Fossil finds changed ideas about how life began. The first example of an articulated plesiosaur—Plesiosaurus dolichodeirus—was discovered in 1823 by Mary Anning in Dorset, England.

"…continuous use of any organ gradually strengthens, develops and enlarges that organ."

Jean-Baptiste Lamarck