

Bonobos are very social primates. Their capacity for empathy makes them less aggressive and may align them more closely with their human cousins than the common chimpanzee.