

The Glanville fritillary butterfly metapopulation, in its fragmented habitats on Finland’s Åland Islands, provided the ideal subject for Ilkka Hanski’s studies into species patches.