

In a healthy ecosystem, a repeating fluctuation in numbers between prey, such as rabbits, and predators, such as foxes, is an example of a negative feedback loop balancing the system.