“You have to think in terms of the survival of human society … it is not only the magnitude of change, it’s the pace at which it changes.”

Benjamin Horton

British geographer