

A scientist analyzes a sample of DNA. Genetic manipulation in medicine is standard practice and DNA profiling is a vital forensic tool.

Copying the code

When cells divide, DNA needs to be copied. This is achieved by the splitting of base pairs, which cuts the ladder down the middle to produce two single strands. These act as templates for the production of a second complementary DNA strand on each of them by matching up the