In recent years, as issues such as pollution and climate change have risen up the news agenda, some other established political parties have adopted environmentally friendly policies.

“We have everything we need, save perhaps, political will. But, you know what … political will is a renewable resource.”

Al Gore