incineration plants. In 2015, it imported some 2.5 million tons (2½ million tonnes) of waste from Norway, the UK, Ireland, and other nations.

Read accessible description

"Mining" electronics

The fastest-growing type of waste is discarded electronics. E-waste from mobile phones, computer hard drives, TVs, and other electrical goods reached almost 46 million tons (42 million tonnes) in 2014—almost 25 percent more than in 2010. E-waste often contains precious metals, such as the gold, silver, copper, and palladium used in circuit boards. It has been