

Natural selection works towards the survival of the gene, not the individual.

Male black widow spiders mate even though the females eat them immediately after.

Non-breeding bees in bee colonies serve to help the community survive.

Animals which warn others of approaching predators sacrifice themselves at the expense of the wider group.

BACK TO ARTICLE