

Producers (plants and algae) depend on energy gathered from the Sun and nutrients from decomposed organic matter.

Primary consumers are dependent on an abundance of plants and algae to eat.

Secondary consumers rely on an abundance of primary consumers as their food source.

Life is supported by a vast network of processes.

BACK TO ARTICLE