

Primary succession process over hundreds of years.

It begins with pioneer species such as bare rock, lichens, small annual plants and lichens and grasses and perennials.

Then to intermediate species such as grasses, shrubs, and shade-intolerant trees.

Gives way to a stable climax community, such as shade-tolerant trees.

BACK TO ARTICLE