environment.

1979. The One Child Policy is initiated in China to control the rapid population growth.

1987. Chico Mendes lobbies the US Congress to stop funding projects that damage the Amazon rainforest.

1988. The International Dark-Sky Association is founded in order to prevent light pollution.

1992. Canada halts its cod fishing industry due to excessively depleted fish stocks.

1997. Charles Moore finds a mass of floating debris that becomes known as the “Great Pacific Ocean Garbage Patch”.

1999. High mortality rates in frogs are traced to viruses exacerbated by the trade in live amphibians.

2003. Camille Parmesan and Gary Yohe publish evidence for the climate-change phenomenon of “spring creep”.