

This diagram illustrates the effects of large-scale fishing operations on marine ecosystems.

Fishing operations cause three direct impacts: harvest mortality, physical impact of fishing gear, and bycatch.

Physical impact of fishing gear leads to habitat modification or destruction.

Incidental mortality results from both physical impact of fishing gear and bycatch.

Bycatch produces discarded bycatch and offal.