(c) People cannot change their old habits.
(d) People have neither civic sense nor sense of privacy.

Ans. (b) : Cleanliness campaign is being conducted with great vigor in India. Yet the trend of open defecation continues. An attempt has been made to understand the root cause of thin trend through research related to open defecation. People consider open defecation to be more environmentally cleaner than toilets and the other is suffering from the fear of filling the safety tank quickly. Unless these two ideological problems are not addressed by public awareness, it cannot be overcome.

Passage-5

In the last two decades, the world's gross domestic product (GDP) has increased 50 percent, whereas inclusive wealth has increased by a mere 6 percent. In recent decades, GDP-driven economic performance, has only harmed inclusive wealth like human capital; and natural capital like forests, land and water. While the world's human capital which stands at 57 percent of total inclusive wealth grew by only 8 percent, the natural which is 23 percent of total inclusive wealth declined by 30 per cent worldwide in the last two decades.

5. Which of the following is the most crucial inference from the above passage?
(a) More emphasis should be laid on the development of natural capital.
(b) The growth driven by GDP only is neither desirable nor sustainable.
(c) The economic performance of the countries of the world is not satisfactory.
(d) The world needs more human capital under the present circumstances.

Ans. (b) : The most conclusive inference of the given passage the growth driven by GDP only is neither desirable nor sustainable, as GDP driven economic performance in recent decades has led to inclusive wealth such as human capital and natural resources such as forests, land and water have been damaged.

Passage-6

By 2020, when the global economy is expected to run short of 56 million young people, India, with its youth surplus of 47 million, could fill the gap. It is in this context that labour reforms are often cited as the way to unlock double-digit growth in India. In 2014, India's labour force was estimated to be about 40 per cent of the population, but 93 per cent of this force was in unorganized sector. Over the last decade, the compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of employment has slowed to 0.5 per cent, with about 14 million jobs created during last year when the labour force increased by about 15 million.

6. Which of the following is most rational inference from the above passage?
(a) India must control its population growth so as to reduce its unemployment rate.
(b) Labour reforms are required in India to make optimum use of its vast labour force productively.
(c) India is poised to achieve the double-digit growth very soon.
(d) India is capable of supplying the skilled young people to other countries.

Ans. (b) : There is a need for labor reforms in India to make optimum use of India's vast workforce productively.

Passage-7

The very first lesson that should be taught to us when are old enough to understand it, is that complete freedom from the obligation to work is unnatural, and ought to be illegal, as we can escape our share of the burden of work only by throwing it on someone else's shoulders. Nature ordains that the human race shall perish of famine if it stops working. We cannot escape from this tyranny. The question we have to settle is how much leisure we can afford to allow ourselves.

7. The main idea of the passage is that
(a) it is essential for human beings to work
(b) there should be a balance between work and leisure
(c) working is a tyranny which we to face
(d) human's understanding of the nature of work is essential

Ans. (a) : The given passage talks about our obligations to do our work and it is essential for human being to work as without work how can they get food. This statement gives the main idea which is the crux of the whole passage.

Passage-8

There is no harm in cultivating habits so long as they are not injurious. Indeed, most of us are little more than bundle of habits. Take away our habits and the residuum would hardly be worth bothering about. We could not get on without them. They simplify the mechanism of life. They enable us to do a multitude of things automatically, which, if we had to give fresh and original thought to them each time, would make existence an impossible confusion.

8. The author suggests that habits
(a) tend to make our lives difficult
(b) add precision to our lives
(c) make it easier for us to live
(d) tend to mechanize our lives

Ans. (c) : According to the author, habits make the life process easy, due to which many things start happening automatically. So, habits make life easier.

Ans. (d) : The passage is talking about hardwork, brotherhood and national unity in India. This option is the most appropriate answer.

Passage-2

"The individual, according to Rousseau, puts his person and all his power in common under the supreme direction of the General Will and in our corporate capacity we receive each member as an indivisible part of the whole."

10. In the light of the above passage, the nature of General Will is best described as
(a) the sum total of the private wills of the individuals
(b) what is articulated by the elected representatives of the individuals
(c) the collective good as distinct from private wills of the individuals
(d) the material interests of the community

Ans. (c) : The given passage is a philosophical one in which collective good as distinct from private wills of the individuals, is correct Answer.

Passage-3

In a democratic State, where a high degree of Political maturity of the people obtains, the conflict between the will of the sovereign law-making body and the organized will of the people seldom occurs.

11. What does the above passage imply?
(a) In a democracy, force is the main phenomenon in the actual exercise of sovereignty.
(b) In a mature democracy, force to a great extent is the main phenomenon in the actual exercise of sovereignty.
(c) In a mature democracy, use of force is irrelevant in the actual exercise of sovereignty.
(d) In a mature democracy, force is narrowed down to a marginal phenomenon in the actual exercise of sovereignty.

Ans. (d) : The most important condition of any democratic system is that there should be 'sovereignty' in the hands of the people. The success as failure of democracy depends on how much people's participation is in it. Political consciousness among the people is essential for the success of democracy. For a mature democracy, the spread of education among the citizens is very important.

Passage-4

A successful democracy depends upon widespread interest and participation in politics, in which voting is an essential part. To deliberately refrain from taking such an interest, and from voting, is a kind of implied anarchy, it is to refuse one's political responsibility while enjoying the benefits of a free political society.

12. This passage relates to
(a) duty to vote
(b) right to vote
(c) freedom to vote
(d) right to participate in politics

Ans. (a) : The responsibility of voting has been highlighted in this passage. India is a democratic country. Here the leaders who lead the country and the state are elected on the basis of voting. With regard to sending representatives of their choice to the parliament and state legislatures, the democratic representation system is of relevance to both the electorate and the political system. Therefore, voters should be aware of their responsibility towards the country.

Passage-5

In a free country, the man who reaches the position of leader is usually one of outstanding, character and ability. Moreover, it is usually possible to foresee that he will reach such a position, since early in life one can see his qualities of character. But this is not always true in the case of a dictator; often he reaches his position of power through chance, very often through the unhappy state of his country.

13. The passage seems to suggest that
(a) a leader foresees his future position
(b) a leader is chosen only by a free country
(c) a leader must see that his country is free from despair
(d) despair in a country sometimes leads to dictatorship

Ans. (d) : A person reaching a constitutional position in an independent country is generally of excellent character and ability. But instead of doing good to the country, a dictator does harm to the country. Such a person reaches his position of power by chance, which becomes the main reason for the sad condition of the country.

Passage-6

The greatest blessing that technological progress has in store for mankind is not, of course, an accumulation of material possessions. The amount of these that can be effectively enjoyed by one individual in one lifetime is not great. But there is not the same narrow limit to the possibilities of the enjoyment of leisure. The gift of leisure may be abused by people who have had no experience of making use of it. Yet the creative use of leisure by a minority in societies has been the mainspring of all human progress beyond the primitive level.
