But no concrete steps were taken in this regard before 1823.
At last in 1823 an official agency–General Committee of public instruction was created to deal with educational matters particularly the expenditure of the sum of one lakh of rupees. Thus the activities of the GCPI for the decade from 1823 clearly indicate-its inclination towards orientation. The enlightened Indians severely attacked this policy of Orientalism under the leadership of Raja Ram Mohan Roy. He submitted a memorandum to the Governor-General on 11th December, 1823 and urged the Government to abandon the proposal for establishing a Sanskrit College in Calcutta.
But no heed was paid to this memorial and the committee went against the trend of history and the desire for English education among Indians.
