

Sssuch a good actor

Most predators prefer to eat living prey. So, if in danger, grass snakes often wriggle around as if they are dying. To finish, they turn over, curl up, lie still, and play dead.