Here we may connect liberalisation to privatisation in India. Liberalisation shows the direction of reform in India i.e. inclination towards the dominance of market. But how will it be achieved? Basically, privatisation will be the path to reform. It means, everything which includes promotion to the 'market' will be the path of the reform process in India.

GLOBALISATION

The process of Globalisation has always been used in economic terms though it has always taken the political and cultural dimensions. Once economic changes occur it has several sociopolitical manifestations.[23] Globalisation is generally termed as 'an increase in economic integration among nations'[24] . Even before several nation-states were not even born, the countries around the world had gone for globalisation i.e. 'a closer integration of their economies'.[25] This globalisation lasted from 1800 to almost 1930, interrupted by the Great Depression and the two Wars which led to retrenchment and several trade barriers were erected since early 1930s.[26]

The concept was popularised by the Organisation of Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) in the mid-1980s again after the Wars. In its earlier deliberation, the organisation had defined globalisation in a very narrow and business-like sense— 'any cross-border investment by an OECD company outside its country of origin for its benefit is globalisation'. After this summit of the OECD, proposals for replacing the GATT by the WTO were pushed by the developed economies of the world, better known as the starting of the Uruguay Round of GATT deliberations which ends in the Marrakesh (1994) with the birth of WTO'. In the meantime, the OECD had defined (1995) globalisation officially, too—"a shift from a world of distinct national economies to a global economy in which production is internationalised and financial capital flows freely and instantly between countries."[27]

The official meaning of globalisation for the WTO is movement of the economies of the world towards "unrestricted cross border movements of goods and services, capital and the labour force". It simply means that the
