2. Banking Industry

With the passage of time, there developed a number of government and privately owned banks in the country, and became the mainstay of the capital market by the 1980s.

3. Security Market

After the government's attempts to formally organise the security and stock market of India, the segment has seen accelerated expansion. Today, it is counted among the most vibrant share markets of the world and has challenged the monopoly of the banks in the capital market of the country[9].

Financial Regulators

At present Indian financial market has a number of regulators, precisely eleven—RBI, SEBI, FMC, NABARD, IRDA, SIDBI, NHB, SFCs, LDBI, CLB and Registrar of Cooperative Societies.

The Narasimhan Committee on Financial System (1991) has made a strong case for a single requlator for banks, financial institutions and the non-banking financial institutions in India.

Meanwhile, the Justice B N Srikrishna headed Financial Sector Legislative Reforms Commission (FSLRC) handed over its report end-March 2013 – it was set up March 2011 for examining the regulatory structure and the laws governing the financial sector. The 10-member committee had a broad mandate covering all financial services as well as everything currently overseen by any financial regulator. Broadly, the commission has recommended what can be called a changeover from an areabased division of regulators to a task-based division. Major highlights of the recommendations are as follows:

i. Today, each agency like the Sebi or the IRDA or the FMC looks after one type of financial service or one area – this would be replaced by a horizontal structure whereby the basic regulatory and monitoring functions of all areas would be done by a Unified Financial Agency (UFA).
