3. For the new international monetary system, basically two plans were presented in the meeting —one by the US delegation led by Harry D. White (of the US Treasury) and the British delegation led by John Meynard Keynes. It was the US plan which was ultimately agreed upon.

   J.M. Keynes had proposed a more impartial, practical and over-arching idea via his plan at Bretton Woods. His suggestions basically included three things:

   (i) Proposal to set up an International Clearing Union (ICU), a central bank of all central banks, with its own currency (Keynes named this currency 'bancor')—to mitigate the balance of payment crises of member nations.

   This bank was supposed to penalise (no such provision in the IMF) the countries holding trade surpluses (with a global tax of one per cent per month) on the ground that such countries were keeping world demand low by under-purchasing the products produced by other countries. The corpus collected via this tax was to be used to maintain an international buffer stock of primary goods (i.e., food articles)—to be used in the periods of food shortages among the member nations. (In place, under the IMF provisions trade deficit countries are penalised.)

   (ii) For the reconstruction of war-devastated Europe, a fund was to be set up, on the basis of this plan for Relief and Reconstruction (in place of it the US-sponsored Marshall Plan took care of the needs of Europe).

   (iii) There was a proposal of creating Commodity Buffer Stock to be operated by an International Trade Organisation (ITO). This stock of primary goods was to be used to stabilise their prices in the international market.
