Gender budgeting started in India with the Union Budget 2006–07 which proposed an outlay of Rs. 28,737 crore dedicated to the cause of women and created gender budgeting cells in 32 ministries and departments.[57]

Outcome and Performance Budgets[58]

The concepts are part of result-oriented budgeting. While outcome budget is presented by different departments and divisions of a ministry or the government, the performance budget is presented by the Ministry of Finance on behalf of the government. Both go for 'quantitative' as well as 'qualitative' progress reports of the performance. The outcome budget is a micro level process while performance budget is a macro level process in budgeting. There are many outcome budgets in any one performance budget.

The basic objective of such budgeting is to bring in transparency and thereby making the government more and more responsible to the House and the public. Naturally, they bring in prudence and optimisation elements in public spending (also see entry 'Outcome Budget' in Chapter 24).

CUT MOTION

In democratic political systems, there is a provision of Cut Motion in the House/Parliament (usually it is the opposition but floor might be crossed by members of the House belonging to the government due to presence of inner-party politics). In the US, the budget provisions presented by the government must be passed by the Congress. Only then they can be enacted. Unlike this, in the British parliamentary system though the budget of the government is voted by the House usually this is considered a political document and passed unchanged. India has mixed provisions of voting on the budget after discussion in both the Houses. There are different constitutional provisions by which the Parliament starts discussion on the demands, grants, etc. proposed by the government in the Budget[59] —

(i) Token Cut is a cut of '100 by the House from the total demand made by the government.
