(v) As corruption is supposed to be very high in India, even politicians are believed to park their black money.

(vi) They accelerate hawala, bribery, etc. in India.

Recently, we have seen some effective actions being taken by the victim nations to unearth their funds parked in these havens such as the USA, Germany and many of the OECD nations. The Government of India has also started such initiatives recently.

Q. 8 Write a note on the changing dimensions of planning in India.

Ans. In the past one and half decades, we have seen great changes taking place in the process of planning in India. We may analyse the changes according to the below broad classifications:

(i) Phase-I (1991–2002): As India moved towards the era of economic reforms, the major change the government announced was the greater participation of the private sector in the developmental process and the nature of planning tilted more towards indicative planning — every new year has been a movement in this direction.

(ii) Phase-II (Post 2002): As the Tenth Five-Year Plan (2002–07) commenced, we saw many important changes taking place in the nature of planning — major ones are as given below:

(a) A serious mention of the role of states in the process of planning — a complete departure from the past. Statewise growth targets worked in consultation with states, are clear pointers. “Unless states achieve their targets, nation can’t achieve its target”, says the plan. Planning heading towards real kind of decentralisation (73rd & 74th constitutional Amendments were forcing it also).

(b) Governance has been recognised as a factor of development – the Plan suggests serious attempts in this direction.

(c) The Plan is now implemented with special reference to economic reforms with the help of steering Committee.
