The UNGA has adopted a number of resolutions and established a number of international regimes to work towards effective disarmament and arms control. The institutions comprise the:

1. General Assembly First Committee
2. The 1540 Committee (set up by Security Council Resolution in 2004)
3. UN Disarmament Commission
4. Conference on Disarmament
5. Secretary-General's Advisory Board
6. UNIDIR (United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research)

The United Nations also tries to reach the goal of disarmament through its Office for Disarmament Affairs (UNODA). The Office promotes the goal of nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation and the strengthening of the disarmament regimes in respect of other weapons of mass destruction, chemical and biological weapons. It also promotes disarmament efforts in the area of conventional weapons, especially land mines and small arms. UNODA provides substantive and organizational support for the norm-setting in the area of disarmament through the work of the General Assembly and its First Committee, the Disarmament Commission, the Conference on Disarmament and other bodies.