which facilitates transfer of money, arms and operatives to and from Syria, Southern Lebanon and Iran.[6] The international community must gear up to tackle these transnational criminal activities to save the future generations.