2011, Christine Lagarde was named Managing Director of the IMF, replacing Dominique Strauss-Kahn (1 November 2007–18 May 2011).

India joined the IMF on 27 December 1945 and IMF credit during turbulent period of India's economy in 1981–1982 and 1991–1993 had helped to tide over the balance of payment deficit. Yet, India and other emerging economies like the BRICS countries have been demanding reforms of the quota system and voting rights. The G-20 countries also want a dynamic system of calculating the economic weightage of a country.
