from prison, after being imprisoned for 15 years. Following his release from prison, he helped found the 88-generation students' group, which continued to fight for democracy in Burma. He was arrested on August 21, 2007, with other 13 leaders of the 88-generation students for organizing peaceful demonstrations and was sentenced to 65 years imprisonment for his role in the August 2007 demonstrations. Min Ko Naing was released along with numerous other activists on January 13, 2012, as part of a mass presidential pardon for political activists.

Mindon Min (1808–1878). Known as a modernizer, Mindon Min was the last ruler of the Konbaung dynasty, ruling from 1853 to 1878. He ascended the throne following the abdication of his half brother Pagan Min in February 1853. Upon his ascension Mindon Min sued for peace end the second Anglo-Burmese war. He found the last royal capital, Mandalay, in 1757. During his reign Mindon Min undertook a modernization of the administration of government through a series of bureaucratic reforms.

Min-gyi-nyo (1459–1531). He was the founder of the Toungoo dynasty; he reigned from 1486 to 1531. During the early 1490s, Min-gyi-nyo built a new capital and established himself as a military commander. He attacked settlements along the frontier between Ava and Toungoo. He also reigned he conquered the Mohnyin Shan kingdom in northern Burma. In 1510, Min-gyi-nyo founded the first Toungoo dynasty at Toungoo. He died in 1531.

Ne Win (1911–2002). He was also known as Thakin Shu Maung, and was the general and leader of Burma from 1962 to 1988. Ne Win joined the Burmese independence movement Do Bama Asi Ayon in the 1930s. He was one of the Thirty Comrades who was trained by the Japanese; he returned with the invading Japanese as the head of the BIA in 1941. He became commander of the renamed Burma Defense Army in 1943. Following World War II, Ne Win joined the regular army where he rose through the ranks. He was promoted as brigadier general in 1948. In February 1949, he became commander of the armed forces. In 1962, Ne Win ousted the popularly elected Prime Minister U Nu. In 2002, Ne Win was placed under