declares a state of emergency.

Aung San Suu Kyi visits Switzerland, Norway, Ireland, Great Britain, and France during a historic 17-day trip. This is the first time in 24 years she has been able to visit Europe.

The government releases about 20 political dissidents as part of a presidential amnesty. Among the released are Ko Aye Aung, Than Zaw, and Pyit Phyo Aung.

Vice President Tin Aung Myint Oo resigns. Mr. Tin was a former general with close ties to the military.

Aung San Suu Kyi attends her first session of parliament as a lawmaker after she won a seat in the April 1 by-election.

U.S. President Barack Obama eases sanctions, allowing American firms to invest in Myanmar. President Thein Sein calls for all Western sanctions to be dropped.

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton meets Thein Sein at a business forum in Cambodia.

Thai Prime Minister Yingluck Shinawatra and Myanmar President Thein Sein sign several key economic agreements, including a pledge by the Thai government to help the government of Myanmar prepare for the chairmanship of ASEAN.

Myanmar is granted access to the European Union's Generalized System of Preferences, which allows access to European markets without quotas or duties.

Aung San Suu Kyi visits the United States for the first time in two decades and meets President Barack Obama in Washington, D.C.

Aung San Suu Kyi finally receives the U.S. Congressional Gold Medal she was awarded in 2008 when she was under house arrest. Also in attendance was Railways Minister Aung Min representing President Thein Sein.

President Thein Sein visits the United States. This is the first by a Myanmar leader in 46 years.