* An ‘intimate community’ is a group of people who know one another well and depend on each other for survival.