around election day; and some improvements concerning the use, costs, and transparency of the electoral dispute resolution process. All these measures deserve further development to make them more participatory, transparent, and functional. In any case, future electoral stakeholders have a better foundation to work from now than prior to the 2015 elections.

Notes

1 This chapter cannot deal with all nuances of conflict which occurred during the electoral period. For example, it omits conflicts within the (formerly) governing, military-proxy elite, or a detailed discussion of the electoral conditions for internally displaced persons in conflict-affected areas.

2 See the reports of international election observation missions, that is, ANFREL (2015), EU EOM (2015), and TCC EOM (2015).

3 The UEC publicized official election results via its results centre in Naypyitaw in the period between 9 and 20 November 2015, and later on its websites via the following links (last accessed 5 February 2015): http://uecmyanmar.org/index.php/2014-02-11-08-31-43/884-1-12-2015-pyithuhluttaw, http://uecmyanmar.org/index.php/2014-02-11-08-31-43/885-1-12-2015-amyotharhluttaw, http://uecmyanmar.org/index.php/2014-02-11-08-31-43/886-1-12-2015-sanddhluttaw, http://uecmyanmar.org/index.php/2014-02-11-08-31-43/887-1-12-2015-nationality. Compare the IFES-MIMU results maps for further details: <http://www.themimu.info/election>. Accessed 5 February 2015.

4 The following eight armed groups participated in the NCA: All Burma Students' Democratic Front (ABSDF), Arakan Liberation Party (ALP), Chin National Front (CNF), Democratic Karen Benevolent Army (DKBA), Karen National Liberation Army-Peace Council (KNLA-PC), Karen National Union (KNU), Pa-O National Liberation Organization (PNLO), Restoration Council of Shan State (RCSS). Together with the leaders of these groups, the NCA was signed by the president, the vice presidents, the commander-in-chief, the deputy commander-in chief, the speakers of the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw and other members of parliament on behalf of the government. Representatives of the UN, the EU, China, India, Thailand, and Japan were invited to sign as international witnesses.

5 The author has written elsewhere in more detail about this period (Lidauer 2015).

6 For an overview of Myanmar's administrative structure see <http://www.themimu.info/sites/themimu.info/files/documents/Myanmar_Administrative_Structure_Aug_2015.pdf>. Accessed 5 February 2015.

7 UEC Notifications No 61-65/2015 (October 12) and No 67/2015 (October 27).

8 Together with the Union Election Commission Law and the Political Party