

Matching red facings to collar and cuffs indicate the first regiment of chasseurs

Breeches
The green woollen breeches were held up with braces. They had a fall fly, a wide flap of material that let down at the front.

Bread bag
The lightweight cloth bag was used to carry rations. Cavalrymen were not issued with water bottles and had to provide their own means of carrying drink – usually a leather wineskin.

Attaching slide on carbine to clip on crossbelt, only used when dismounted

Riding boots
Cavalry boots were well made in soft leather in the traditional style of the Hungarian hussar.

V-shaped front gave flexibilty at the knee

Stud to fasten to other crossbelt with clip for carbine

Cartridge box
The box of prepared cartridges for the carbine and pistols hung from a crossbelt worn over the left shoulder.

Forage cap (bonnet de police) rolled up and strapped to cartridge box

Rowel of spur, made of iron or brass

