For homemade food in a jiffy, roast the vegetables up to three days in advance and keep them in the fridge. This soup then takes just minutes to prepare.

roasted tomato soup

SERVES 4 PREP 10 MINS COOK 30 MINS FREEZE UP TO 3 MONTHS

8 plum tomatoes, about 1½lb (675g) in total, quartered
1 red onion, cut into 8 wedges
2 garlic cloves, unpeeled
3 tbsp olive oil
sea salt and freshly ground black pepper
1 quart (1 liter) hot vegetable stock
3 tbsp sun-dried tomato paste

1 Preheat the oven to 350°F (180°C). Put the tomatoes, onion, and garlic on baking sheets covered with parchment paper. Drizzle with the oil, and season well with salt and freshly ground black pepper. Roast until they are soft, caramelized, and slightly browned—allow 10–15 minutes for the garlic, 15–20 minutes for the onion, and 25 minutes for the tomatoes. Squeeze the garlic from their skins once they have cooled slightly.

2 Transfer to a blender, add the stock and tomato paste, then process until smooth but still slightly chunky. Season with salt and freshly ground black pepper, reheat gently, and serve hot.

CHOOSING TOMATOES
Pick out firm tomatoes that smell of the vine. Go organic for the best flavor, but also because organic tomatoes contain more health-promoting antioxidants than those cultivated by conventional means.