A favorite from Goa in southern India, the vindaloo is Portuguese in heritage and notable for its garlicky masala, spiked with wine vinegar and softened with sugar.

6 dried red chiles
1½lb (650g) boneless pork belly with rind, cut into 1 x 2in (2.5 x 5cm) chunks
1 tsp cumin seeds
½ tsp black peppercorns
6 garlic cloves, coarsely chopped
2 in (5cm) fresh ginger, coarsely chopped
1 tsp sweet paprika
3 tbsp tamarind pulp
3 tbsp white wine vinegar
4–6 tbsp vegetable oil
2in (5cm) cinnamon stick
2 star anise
3 onions, finely chopped
¾ cup white wine
1¾ quarts (1¾ liters) chicken stock
2–3 tsp palm sugar or dark brown (muscovado) sugar, to taste
salt
1 red chile, seeded and cut into strips, to serve
2 tbsp fresh cilantro, to serve

1 Soak the chiles in hot water for 10 minutes (for a milder flavor, remove the seeds first). Put the pork in a pan, cover with boiling water, bring to a boil and simmer for 5 minutes. Drain, discard the liquid, and set aside.

2 Dry-roast the cumin and peppercorns (see p25) and grind using a mortar and pestle. In a small food processor, process the ground spices, drained red chiles, garlic, ginger, paprika, tamarind, and vinegar. Set aside.

3 Heat the oil in a pan. When hot, cook the cinnamon and star anise for 30 seconds. Add the onions and cook for 10–15 minutes. Add the spice paste and cook for 1 minute. Pour in the wine and stock and bring to a boil. Add the pork, turn the heat down, and simmer for 2 hours. Chill overnight. The next day, scoop out the meat, strip away the rind, and dice. Skim the fat from the stock and strain the liquid into a clean pan.

4 Bring to a fast boil over high heat and cook for 5–10 minutes. Sweeten with sugar and season with salt. Before serving, stir in the pork and garnish with the chile strips and cilantro.
