This unusual chilled soup is extraordinarily good, bursting with health and vitality, and is made in just a few minutes. What's not to like?

mango, cilantro, and pomegranate soup

SERVES 4 PREP 5 MINS FREEZE NOT SUITABLE

CHILLED

1 large or 2 small ripe mangoes
1 red chile, seeded and coarsely chopped
½in (1cm) piece fresh ginger, peeled and finely chopped
1 tbsp coarsely chopped cilantro leaves juice of 1–1½ limes
sea salt
1¼ cups pomegranate or cranberry juice coarsely chopped cilantro, to serve a few pomegranate seeds, to serve (optional)

1 Peel the mango and cut off all the flesh. Add to a blender or food processor along with the chile, ginger, cilantro, lime juice, pomegranate juice, and a little salt and blend to a purée. Taste and add a little more salt if needed.

2 Pour into small bowls or shot glasses, top with a little more chopped cilantro and a few pomegranate seeds (if using), and serve at once.

PREPARING MANGO

Halve the mango, cutting slightly off-center to avoid the pit in the middle. Repeat on the other side.

Slice the flesh in a lattice, then push the cubes of fruit out, using a knife if necessary.