

Aerosol products such as insect repellents were widely available from the 1950s. The damaging effects of the CFCs they contained were not known until the 1970s.

See also: Global warming • Environmental feedback loops • Pollution • The Keeling Curve • Environmental ethics