ALISON SINGER

Alison Singer is a Ph.D. candidate in Community Sustainability at Michigan State University, where she studies storytelling and science communication. She has a broad educational background in writing, ecology, and the social sciences. Alison has worked as an educator for environmental charities, and for the US Environmental Protection Agency.