vaccines to over 100 countries during the Covid-19 pandemic, a combination of grants, commercial sales and contributions to the global COVAX initiative.

A major opportunity for India to elevate the Global South's agenda occurred during its presidency of the G20 in 2022–2023. In January 2023, India hosted a 'Voice of Global South' virtual summit, featuring leaders from 125 non-G20 countries, to solicit their inputs on global affairs. For India, the G20 process proved a grand affair, with India hosting preparatory and official working group meetings in some 60 cities across the country.

The Summit itself in September 2023 was the most high-profile international conference in independent India's history, with most major world leaders—barring Xi Jinping of China and Vladimir Putin of Russia—in attendance. In addressing the G20, Modi evoked the Sanskrit phrase 'Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam (the world is a family)' as a fundamental principle of India's global conduct. [57] Substantively, India managed to broker a consensus document despite severe differences over Ukraine. [58] But of longer-term consequence, India's presidency included the addition of the African Union to the G20 group and commitments to focus international financial institutions on climate action. Another development of some consequence involved efforts at popularizing India's experience with digital public infrastructure (DPI). Over sixty countries had expressed some interest in India's model of digital identification and payments and the G20 Summit proved an opportunity to highlight these developments. The G20 Summit of 2023 served an important symbolic and political purpose. But perhaps more importantly, it had some consequences for the representation of the Global South, the revitalizing of multilateral climate finance, the internationalization of digital public infrastructure, the restructuring of West Asia, and India's ability to negotiate consensus on matters of war and peace.
