record also shows that leadership and decision-making mattered. Taken together, the changes in India’s position and international circumstances have been significant. Sufficient time has elapsed since 1991 to ensure that a realignment in India’s approach to global affairs is readily apparent.